all together

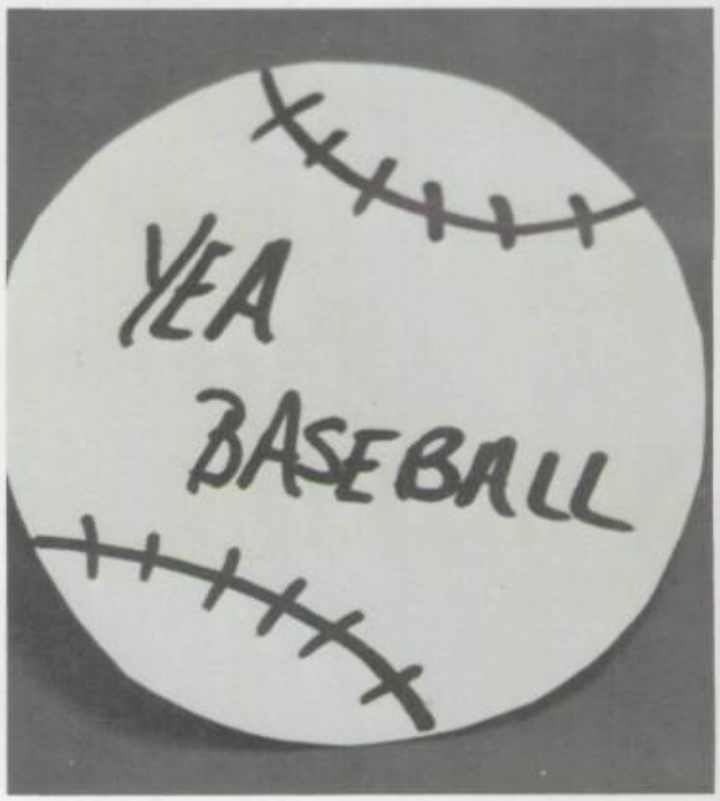
Putting it all together — that's what we did this year. The changes, upsets, joys and heartaches caught us unaware at first, but reunited us in the end.

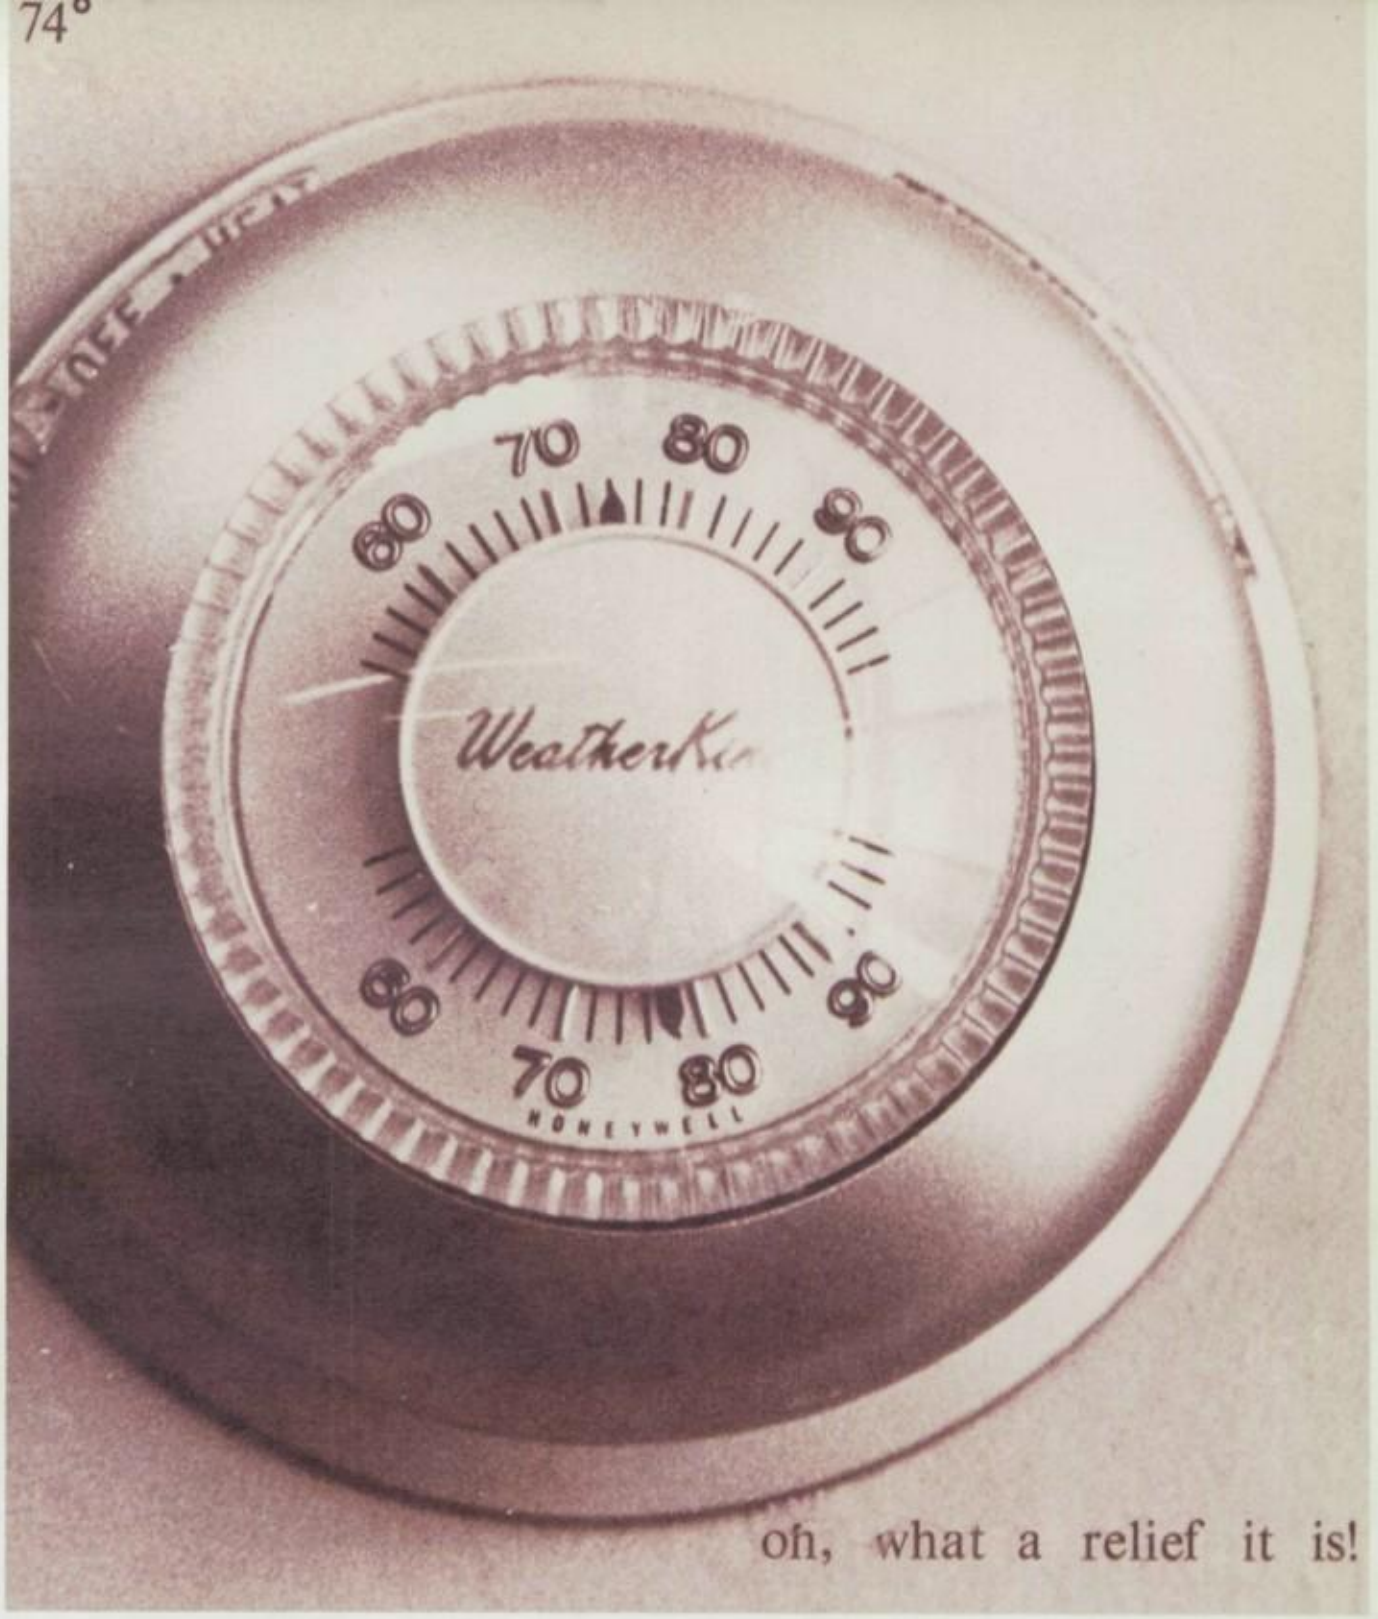
There were so many changes at the beginning of the year. Remember those hot August days when the new air-conditioning kept us cool? And the pre-fabs. It was like a southeast campus had been added. Basketball players delighted at the smooth, shining expanse of new flooring in the gym. The long-awaited greenhouse was completed. And how about the wonderland of asphalt and yellow lines instead of the wilderness of chuck holes and rocks in the parking lot? The tennis courts even turned green and level.

The upsets came in football. It wasn't an ordinary season, it was a losing season. It was difficult to accept those low ratings and no-score games. But something happened as the season progressed. The fans came to accept the losses, but more important, they gained new respect for a team which had persistent spirit and determination.

The joys came from many sources. The band gave outstanding performances in local and state competitions. The wrestlers surprised everyone with their first-year winning record. Speech and drama students qualified for state competition with their award-winning one-act, "Once Upon a Playground". The yearbook was titled "Pieces of Eight" after hours of researching and a school-wide naming contest.

The year began with changes that kept us slightly out of step, like a melody sung off-key. Once accepted, they turned to joy and a sense of pride. This was a time of assembling all the puzzle pieces, a time of putting it all together.





oh, what a relief it is!

Like a candle in the night, shining bright for all to see,
It gives off warmth and light to all those around.
Candles enhance our lives with color, light and essence.
Sometimes their exterior is weak and melts,
But the interior holds the wick firm to fill a purpose.
Like a candle in the wind,
The flame is leaping, running, dancing, jumping,
And then the fateful gust, and we cry in darkness.

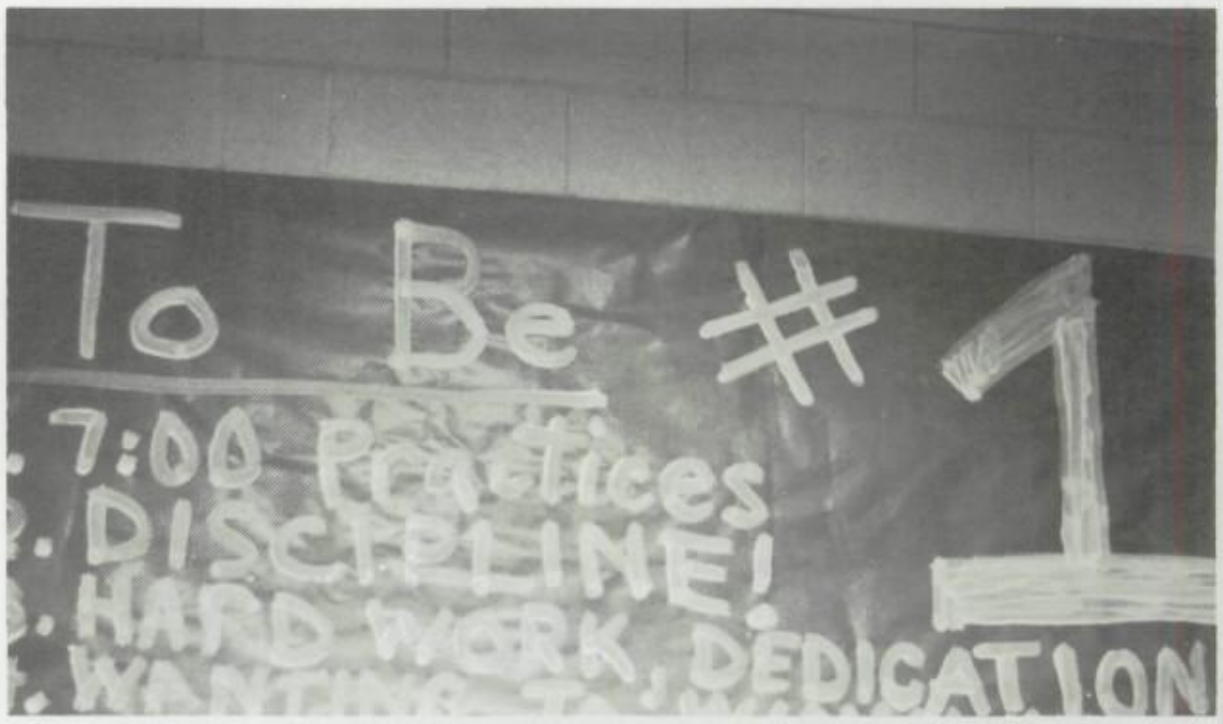
BAND

It was a good year for the Band of Pirates. It was one of changes and firsts, contests and ratings, rehearsals and practices.

Several changes were made in the band. Harold Fisher joined the staff as assistant band director. A new section was added, the rifle team, and their performances were superior. They wore mid-length purple skirts, gold cummerbunds, white satin shirts, and white western hats.

The Band of Pirates competed in many contests. They made superior ratings in the State Fair Parade, Henryetta, and District contest, and rated sixth in State Contest at Lawton. It was an outstanding year all round.



Rifle team: Ronda Van Vors, Carolyn Babbitt, Kara Lewis, Pam Holt, and Barbie McKinney.
Flag team: Joni Hupp, Libby Acree, Julia Tatum, Kim Hausner, Gina Hisey, and Tracy Burtrum.

Alan Norrell, Bill Buchanan, Gary Hainey, and Tracy Tyson show their brass spirit.

Even with an injured arm, Allison Almy performs at Halftime.

Displaying their superior rating trophy from District Contest are Patty Farris, Pam Holt, Jack Bush, and Erick Bellis.

Stage Band

"The band sounds good, but not good enough to win." That was how Director Mike Arnold felt the night before state contest. But the feeling was turned around when the stage band came away from the contest rated the number three stage band in the state. They really fooled "Coach Arnold." The band also won third place at the Tahlequah Jazz Festival.

At Tri-State in Enid, the stage band was so fired up that nothing would stop them, and they gave an outstanding performance once again. The judges complemented the band on their outstanding soloists and easy-going, yet hard-working attitude. Practicing at 7 a.m. weekdays and 7 p.m. Thursday nights paid off for the M.H.S. Stage Band. It took lots of wit, hard work, and dedication to come out on top throughout the year.

CHEERLEADERS, PEP CLUB

Have you ever wished you were in front of the crowds doing all the neat things the cheerleaders and pep club members did? However appealing it seemed, it wasn't all fun and glory.

The cheerleaders worked hard on routines, cheers, and chants. They attended summer camp, called countless practices, and coordinated spirited pep assemblies.

The Pirate Peppers could always be counted on to be at the games regardless of rain, wind, or cold of night. Their "Be A Pepper Too" T-shirts and attitude sparked enthusiasm among the rest of the student body.

The peppers and cheerleaders worked together on many projects, combining their efforts and skills, making it a year of high spirits.

DOMINIQUES

Their goal was to provide service to the community and school, and that's exactly what they did.

The greenhouse was completed, the baseball field was improved, and a recreational area for students was begun.

1. Most Dominiques agreed that Tracy Watson had the greenest thumb. 2. Ward Wolfe and Tracy Watson took care of the fruit trees. 3. Watering his plants was Tommy Gerhardt. 4. Since it was very hot in the greenhouse, plants needed lots of attention, as shown by Sherrie Gibbs.

Science Club

Science club was always where the excitement was. Activities never seemed to run out.

To begin the new school year, they made ice cream for the Halloween carnival. It was a nice cool treat for the already warm evening.

During spring break, they went to Keystone, Colorado, where they learned about environmental education and cross country skiing. Quinzhee's, which are large mounds of snow hollowed out, were made to sleep in. Wednesday of spring break was a free day and everybody went downhill skiing. It was a new and exciting thrill for many.

FFA

Learning to do, doing to learn, earning to live, living to serve. This is the FFA motto and it's exactly what they have tried to achieve.

FFA is involved in more than going to class. It was preparing for livestock shows by blocking and shearing sheep, powdering, painting and oiling pigs, and the multitude of other jobs required to show animals. FFAers attended many contests as well as state and national conventions and the summer FFA Alumni Camp where they listened to speeches and went to classes where they learned more about agriculture related subjects. It took all of this together to do, to learn, to live, and to serve.

Newspaper

Excitement is printing the news like the pros. Seven staff members published the Pride and won eight awards for column writing, photography and editorials at Press Day at Northeastern State University in March.

Good writing, meeting deadlines, a willing staff and advisor Marilyn Wall collected the news and put it all together.

1. Mark Cook, Terri Moore, Vicki Fisher, John Fair, Teresa West, Teresa Damme, and Jay Cranke. 2. Working as assistant editor, Terri Moore had to make sure that each page was correct. 3. FHA

What is FHA? An organization which cooks all the time? No, it's much more than that. The Future Homemakers of America is a service organization helping both school and community.

Community support was given through a money raising project for cystic fibrosis, a respiratory disease.

FHA also sponsored several dinners for the school's athletic groups. They held the annual football dinner after the Dewey game and gave the basketball teams a taco lunch. To make the wrestlers feel welcome in their first year, each member of the squad received a goodie box.

FHA was also fun. They attended rallies, had pizza parties, went to movies, and initiated new members with egg rolls. FHA — doing, learning, and serving.

Girls' FCA

Unity and fellowship. These are the two words that kept coming up when FCA was discussed. FCA — Fellowship of Christian Athletes joining together and uniting in Christ.

The boys were so excited when they got their group going last year that the girls wanted to become involved. Because it was their first year, the girls needed money to get their organization off the ground. In order to do this, the girls sold baked goods at the carnival.

The meetings themselves were uplifting. The girls sang songs, read the Bible and shared with each other problems they encountered on the court and on the field. Being able to discuss their problems and learning to respond to them according to Biblical teaching made the girls "really close."

Boys' FCA

What do Jim King, senior citizens, and Western Hills Lodge have in common? They were all a part of Boys' FCA.

The purpose of the organization is to give athletes a chance to share their problems and victories.

The boys get together to have Bible studies, discussions, and sometimes invite speakers such as Jim King.

In a year of many disappointments FCA has been an inspiration to our athletes. "This group has drawn many people because it centers around Christ. This unites people who are completely different," commented Clay Abercombie, president.

KALEIDOSCOPE

"Grab a piece of music and get on the risers." These words from Mary Elkins often signal the beginning of another practice session for this swinging group.

Kaleidoscope's performances were a show of flashy costumes for many different audiences; for the student body during assemblies and basketball games, the band's rock-o-thon, graduation, and senior citizens at an FCA-sponsored dinner and at the Hewgley Terrace Apartments. They were invited to perform at Silver Dollar City during its annual Choral Festival, and they participated in the Shakespearean Festival.

Their year was filled with new friends, challenging experiences, and a feeling of having put it all together.

SWEET REFLECTIONS

The Sweet Reflections, an all-girl swing group, was a new musical addition to the Vocal Music Department. Their first year was a challenge — frustrating but also rewarding. The obstacles of personal differences were overcome, and the girls became like sisters.

The Sweet Reflections performed for a wide variety of music. There were civic organizations, schools, and at the FCA sponsored TU Blue & Gold game. They sang pop, gospel, boogie, ballads, and more.

The group consisted of eleven when first established, but six more joined at semester.

All agreed it was worth the hard work and frustration to have the opportunity to do what they liked best — sing.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Leading the way in student activities isn't easy, but Student Council members gave their best, from the Halloween Carnival (and a cotton-candy covered president and sponsor) to raising money for projects and dances after games. They were concerned with serious matters, too. Hearing the many complaints about the the parking lot, they voiced their concern and offered their money to the School Board and got results. They also heard the cries of outrage over the Iranian hostages and sponsored Patriotism Week allowing students to express their concern and national pride.

The Student Council reflected the attitude of the entire student body by listening, speaking out, and participating.

YEARBOOK

Cops and robbers, skating and icy cold Saturday morning work sessions were all a part of the 1980 yearbook staff job.

To generate ineterest, this creative group of writers, designers and photographers cooked up a cops and robbers chase to kick off the yearbook signing party. They held a school-wide contest to give the book a name — "Pieces of Eight."

Photographers were on the run to catch activities on film, copy writers interviewed teachers, coaches, class members and sponsors for material, and the designers combined it all to create a page and a book. Special credit for cover and division page designs goes to Margret Crismon.

For this staff, it was truly a year of putting it all together.

Thespians

Creative, zany, energetic, innovative, and hardworking. Only a Thespian could be all these things at one time. For the first time, Mannford students witnessed a Reader's Theater, a one-act play that went to state competition, and a purple and gold Thespian "bee" which flew into first place in the Homecoming car contest.

Thespians also joined forces with the English and music departments to present the first Shakespearean Festival.

An influx of fresh faces, diverse backgrounds and distinct personalities gave Thespians a new outlook and a great year.

Freshman Pep Club and Cheerleaders

Spirit, pride, and enthusiasm had to be the best way to describe the freshman cheerleaders and pep club members.

They were always on the go attending all out-of-town games and supporting the freshman athletes. For the first time, the cheerleaders and pep club participated in the high school homecoming activities. They were guardian angels and helped decorate for the occasion.

Sponsor Paula McCann summed up the year saying, "The freshman cheerleaders and pep club members were a very spirited group and I really enjoyed working with them."

FOOTBALL

The 1979 season seemed slightly out of focus, full of disappointments and obstacles. The nine and one record left players as well as fans frustrated.

Whatever the scoreboard or statistics showed, there was a good side. The main depth defense was the backbone of the team. Offensively speaking, failure to move the ball on the ground and lack of experience were the main drawbacks of the Pirates.

Head Coach Roger Floyd said, "I'm proud of the team, they tried hard. The senior leadership was great. It took a lot to keep coming back and to try harder."

And if you were down on the field you heard the term "Oskie". What did it mean? Interception, first down or something good. The team used it to get spirit up.

Girls' Basketball

"Our greatest asset was out hustle and our will to win." The girls' 21-5 record proved Coach Dean Pierce's summation of the season correct.

One of the many highlights of the year was their overwhelming victory at the Webster Tournament. Brenda Reed was named most valuable player.

Working their way up through the consolation bracket, they won the regional tournament and placed second in the area tourney.

Brenda Reed was named Cimarron Conference defensive player of the year and six starters were named to the all conference defensive team: Bonnie Bunch, Stephanie Hensley, Carol Greenfield, Diane Sanders, Vicki Ponder, and Brenda Reed.

Boys' Basketball

Tournament play was a major part of the season. The boys captured third in the Oologah Tournament, but were beaten after two games in the Webster Tournament.

District Playoffs at Oologah was successful with two wins and one loss. At Regionals they won against Nowata but lost to Collinsville to complete a 16-9 season.

Robert Pitts, Tommy Turner, Brian Rathbun, Wesley Cartwright, and Jamie Caudle were named to the all-conference team, and Ernie Kothe was named co-player of the year.

WRESTLING

Predicament . . . UGH!!! Take-down, escape, and fall were just a few of the new terms wrestling fans learned this season.

In this first year of wrestling the season ended with a 9-10-1 record. Most schools with new wrestling programs win only one or two matches, but the grapplers surpassed all expectations and made Coach Ed McCann very proud of them.

Coaches from neighboring schools praised the squad for their fine showing and discipline.

In the very first homecoming the grapplers beat Barnsdall 57-6. Royalty for these festivities were queen, Melissa Delozier, junior; Starla Nance, freshman; Gina Hisey, sophomore; and Vicki Devine, senior.

BOYS' TRACK

Twenty team members competed in nine meets against 3A and 4A schools during track season. Four of these tracksters earned letters: Ray Blake and Jeff Hampshire in pole vault, Jamie Caudle in the high jump, and Gary Summerlin in the 880.

Jamie Caudle set a school high jump record with a leap of 6'4".

Coach Roger felt the squad performed well and was proud of each individual.

GIRLS' TRACK

Individual performances at the Regional Track Meet highlighted the girl's track season when Lisa Norris placed fourth in the mile run and Deane Ann Whiles earned fourth in the high jump competition.

Four girls earned letters in track by placing in a meet: Gayle Wollard, Stephanie Hensley, Deane Ann Whiles, and Lisa Norris.

Other team members were: Libby Acree, Paula Cottingim, Donetta Bartley, Laura Hausner, Candy Welch, Amy Lyons, Vicki Ponder, Laura Hilton, and Lisa Burtrum.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

Facing the toughest schedule in Mannford Junior High history, the Freshman team fought and worked their way to ultimate victory. According to Coach Wes Brown, an intense off-season program of running and weight lifting will improve the football future for them. Also, the team played well and worked hard; they didn't always win but they gave their best. He felt many would get an opportunity to play varsity football next year. "It's been a real pleasure working with those young men."

FRESHMAN GIRLS' BASKETBALL

The freshman girls, coached by Dean Pierce, had a great year with an eleven and four record. There was balanced scoring with Paula Cottongim and Gayle Wollard leading, followed by Donnetta Bartly, Lisa Burtrum, and Amy Lyons.

"The team placed second in the Yale tournament and since there were only eight girls on the team, everybody had a chance to play."

FRESHMAN BOYS' BASKETBALL

The freshman boys' basketball team had a good year with a six and eight record. Well-balanced scoring was led by Mark Vincent with a 10.8 average. Other high averages were made by Stan Hilton and Doug Osborn with a 7.9 average each, Eric Rainey with 7.2, Dale Rice and Clint Jones with 4.5.

According to Coach John Phillips, "It was a fun season with a good group of kids. I hope they improve over the summer because the potential is there for a great team."

YEARBOOK ROYALTY

Nervous smiles, anxious parents, and frolicking tiny tots — all a part of the Yearbook King and Queen Contest.

Judged on their poise, appearance, and abilty to think on their feet, Clay Abercrombie and LaDonna Tune were selected as the King and Queen. Runners-up were Grag Hill and Teresa Damme.

The middle school Prince and Princess were Scott Collins and Leslie Hale. Runners-up were Mike Stewart and Shelly Hamilton.

The contestants were judged by Betty Boyd, Jan Roberts, and Rev. David Miller. Presiding over the ceremonies was 1979 Yearbook Queen Shawnda Glasgow.

The audience got a real treat in the way of entertainment. Rashel Hogue, Renaté Glasgow, Tammy Roberts, Sweet Reflections, Mike Cottongim, Reneé Brewster, and vocal music director Mary Elkins were all part of the program.

GRADUATION

On May 15, 1980, the senior class took a giant step into the real world. As they listened to Speaker of the Oklahoma House of Representatives, Dan Draper, they reminisced about their school experiences and faced the challenges ahead.

The rain forced ceremonies inside, and the faulty microphone required Margret Crismon, valedictorian, and co-salutatorians Bryan Ledbetter and Kenneth Tedder to present their speeches twice. But as the diplomas were awarded, they looked ahead with anxiety, hope, fear, relief, and more than a few tears.

SENIOR

The Class of '80 encountered many new experiences this year along with the beginning of a new decade.

International news brought anxieties. The Russian invasion of Afghanistan and the hostage situation in Iran caused President Carter to call for a draft registration for 19 and 20-year-olds. Inflation hit hard as gasoline prices shot up from a low of 75 cents a gallon in August of '79. The world of music changed as disco went western and emerged as the most popular form of music. But there were also problems when eleven people died in a stampede of fans at a "Who" concert in Cincinnati.

It was also a year of firsts. The Class of '80 had the highest grades of any graduating class, with over half boasting a grade point above 3.0. The band, with many proud senior members, won first in marching at the Tulsa State Fair. And their great gold rocket won them first prize in the homecoming float contest.

Their junior year was one full of hard work, expenses, and rewards.

Each year the juniors must raise enough money for the Junior-Senior Prom and their senior trip. Because of inflation, this class had to raise more money than any before, and it wasn't an easy task. They sold magazine subscriptions, forced uncooperative seniors to buy most of their chocolate bars, and ran the bingo booth at the annual Halloween carnival. During basketball season, they operated the concession stand (but ate most of their profits).

The prom wasn't the only thing affected by rising costs. Senior rings for the class of '81 cost from $100-200, a 61% increase.

This class wasn't afraid to break with tradition. When the prom committee met to plan the banquet they decided on a buffet dinner instead of a banquet dinner.

This class pulled together to meet the challenges of a new decade and become one of the strongest classes ever.

SOPHOMORE

The class of '82 jumped up a notch from freshmen to sophomores, but there were still a few jokes and some ridicule. Some thought of them as the "class of fewer talents," but every time they were given a chance they came out on top.

Who could forget the thrills and joys of "Mr. Bill's" American History class and the way Mrs. Turner taught them to spell sophomore? As for driving, nobody was better — this class had to be the best! The competition was close every time for Driver's Ed Star of the Week. And it must be admitted, sophomores did shine through with their float, it did put "George" to shame.

The spirit and pride shown by the sophomore class always stood out. They are truly the "Super Seniors of '82!"

"We finally made it, we're in high school now!" Those were the words heard from every freshman. They really enjoyed being in high school, choosing their own classes, and having more freedom.

It was the freshmen's first year to build a float for homecoming, and they did a super job. Their pride and ability were well displayed with a hot air balloon decorated in purple, white, and gold.

There were a few things that they didn't enjoy. Upperclassmen gave them some rough times because they were freshmen. They also discovered the disadvantages of having a split lunch hour with all of the girls in the second half. This didn't alter their spirit one bit, though. They stuck together to make their freshman class one of the best.

HIGH SCHOOL FACULTY

Variety. Probably the one word to best describe these teachers. Always eager to try innovative methods of instruction, lead the cheers or take a pie in the face at a pep rally, attend professional meetings or raise money for scholarships — that's our faculty.

They teach the basics, but do more than just the lesson in a book. Their time is filled with field trips, extra time before and after school and sponsoring classes and clubs.

Whether it's typing or tennis, music or math, drama or drivers' ed., they can do it all.

SECRETARIES AND AIDES

Secretaries and aides provided vital services. They did everything from writing tardy slips, to transcripts, to financial statements. The aides were important also. They duplicated materials, making life a lot less hectic for teachers.

SIXTH, SEVENTH, EIGHTH FOOTBALL

The Doomsday Two Defense led these eighth graders through an undefeated season under John Phillips.

It began with a 24-6 win over Beggs and 8-6 over Cleveland. They defeated Skiatook 18-6, Cushing 18-6, and Pawhuska 22-6.

The seventh grade Pirates had a tough season with a 0-2-6 record.

There was no scoring in the games against Beggs and Cleveland. Other results were: Skiatook 14-8, Hominy 14-0, Cushing 18-14, Bristow 12-8, Pawhuska 20-14 and Pawnee 8-6.

Their coach was Doug Thomas.

The sixth grade Pirates were a determined group of boys coached by Dan Rathbun.

Their first year in competitive football gave them valuable training.

Their first game was a win over Oilton 16-8, and the second a loss to Pawnee 42-6.

EIGHTH GRADE

For the eighth grade it was a year of learning and discovery in the world of business, in sports and in student life. They learned about the world around them by forming a corporation, Leggs Company, which manufactured their goods and sold them to the public. It was a rewarding as well as profitable experience.

The football team, with an undefeated season brought lots of enthusiasm and pride.

The class showed leadership, helped each other in time of need, and looked forward to the future. Their sense of responsibility set an example which will be difficult to follow.

Seventh Grade

Having more responsibility is what being a seventh grader meant. They knew the routine well and felt more comfortable with it.

They enjoyed their expanded sports program, and the boys especially like their first efforts in wrestling.

Seventh graders got used to the ISCS science program.

Most noticeable was their enthusiasm. Classmates and teachers alike enjoyed their spirit.

SIXTH GRADE

Summer vacation ended and the sixth graders, unsure about their new school, were eager to get into the swing of things. They weren't quite ready for the change, but they adjusted quickly.

They thoroughly enjoyed changing classes hourly. They were especially enthusiastic about band and the first home football game, where they exhibited their talents by performing at half time.

The teachers commented, "Their class is really joined together and they have a lot of spirit for each other. We enjoy teaching them."

MIDDLE SCHOOL FACULTY

It takes a special kind of person to work successfully with sixth, seventh, and eighth graders, and these teachers fill the bill. They were equally at home teaching their subjects, performing in Cabaret or as King Tut in the Faculty Follies, sponsoring student dances or participating in Crazy Hat Day. This faculty truly puts all the pieces of education together.

SUPPORT PERSONNEL

If it weren't for these hard working people, what would we do? They mop, wax, polish, sweep, and cook all day long. If it weren't for them the halls would be filled with trash, we wouldn't get a hot meal, and the grounds would be cluttered with litter.

To the support personnel we give our thanks.

SCHOOL BOARD ADMINISTRATION

These are the ones who balance the budget, decide what is to be built, schedule and set policies. The school board members serve voluntarily, giving generously of their time and talents. Their major projects were construction of the elementary school addition, as well as extensive renovation of the high school.

The administration made Mannford schools run smoothly and efficiently, working equally well with students, parents and teachers. Faced with increasing prices and limited funds, they improved and increased the curriculum.

These are the people who coordinate the school system — they make it all work.

FIFTH GRADE

Should I join the band or the vocal music class? This is one of the first questions the fifth graders faced as they began another year of school. Some of the band students participated in a football game while the vocal music students presented a Spring Music Program to the community.

The youngsters were involved in competitive sports for the first time this year. The boys' and girls' teams each played four basketball games with neighboring schools.

Science was a favorite subject for this year's fifth graders. They experimented with gravity, heat, light, and sound. They also studied their bodies and how to take care of them.

They enjoyed dressing up as pioneers on Oklahoma Heritage Day and they also took a trip to Philbrook Art Center.

Fourth Grade

The fourth grade students enjoyed all of their subjects this year, but some more than others. Some of their favorites were math, spelling, and social studies. They played math bingo games and had spelling bees and in social studies they made salt maps.

At open house, the students dressed up as cowboys and Indians and put on a play about Oklahoma. Each recited a poem, told a story, or a fact about the state.

This was the year for the fourth grade class to perform their half of the annual Christmas Program. They played the characters of Santa and his helpers.

Third Grade

Cursive writing instead of printing was one of the most obvious and important accomplishments of the third graders. It was an example of the expansion of their world of study. They learned multiplication and division, and to distinguish nouns and verbs in sentences.

The special project of the year was writing and illustrating their own book. Proud of their work, they traded and read each other's books. Spring brought the annual trip to the Woolaroc Museum and a picnic in Green Valley Park.

A wink, a stare, wide-eyed disbelief — a few of the many looks you found in third grade.

Second Grade

There were so many things to learn about in second grade, there was hardly enough time for all of it, and the variety of topics made it interesting. From pioneers to safety, the human body to plants, and from good foods to famous Americans, the list went on and on. They also learned how to count money, borrow and carry numbers, write letters and stories.

Lots of experiences came from outside their classroom. The Pawnee Bill Museum was filled with Indian clothing, teepees and tools. Behind the counter at the post office they learned how the mail was readied for delivery and how the cancelling machine operated.

The second grade was a year of building on basic knowledge and exploring the outside world. The mystery of learning how to do many things began to unfold.

First Grade

It's a brand new world for first graders — one filled with new people, new places and special events.

Learning to read, spell, add and subtract was a challenge during their first year of all-day classes.

They learned about fire safety at the fire station. The Tulsa Zoo gave many of them their first look at some very different animals, and no one could resist the aroma of bread at the Rainbow bakery.

1. "I wish someone would help me," says Renee Thomas. 2. The Christmas party was a time for shock, happiness, anger, and concentration.

While Mrs. Plett checks the paper carefully, Matt Primm and Julie Clifton wait.

Kindergarten

Kindergarten is German for children's garden. It's not hard to understand why this word is used for the first year of school. The variety of activities available to these five and six-year-olds were a child's garden of delight.

Crayons and paints, puzzles and games taught them the alphabet and numbers.

Brightly decorated bulletin boards emphasized each season and holiday. Dolls, trucks and toy telephones gave vivid imaginations all the help needed.

Story time was a favorite, but show and tell was exciting. Learning songs and singing along with records made everyone happy.

Kindergarten was variety and delight — a child's garden.

ELEMENTARY FACULTY

Being an elementary teacher was a challenging and rewarding experience. Small children were lots of fun to work with. Other things besides just teaching the children went into being an elementary teacher. Lessons were planned to be stimulating and attention-getting. They made bulletin boards, posters, and decorated their doors to liven up the lessons and rooms. Field trips were planned to provide a broad range of experiences.

1. "How dare you take my picture," says Neta Markin. 2. To help the students in every way possible is Donna Lovoi's main goal. 3. Jim Tucker frowns in disgust when his history class won't listen to him.

IN THE NEWS . . .

Iran, Olympics, Will Rogers, Tri-State, Parking

Across the nation and around the world, humanity held its breath as the Iran crisis evolved from a matter of days to weeks and then months. In desperation, a rescue attempt was staged which ended in the deaths of eight military personnel.

While Americans waited behind Iranian bars, the Russian invaded Afghanistan. The Olympic Committee voted to boycott the Moscow Games unless the Russians withdrew their troops.

Oklahomans found a way to evade the gloom by celebrating Will Rogers' 100th birthday and a great increase in state funds from oil and gas production.

Closer to home, a long and continuous outcry by the members of STUCO resulted in the School Board voting to pave the parking lot. There was rejoicing in the ranks and students no longer feared losing their cars in the chuckholes. For the first time the Band of Pirates won first place at Tri-State and the first Shakespearean Festival was held.

The year was one of conflict, turmoil, progress, and joy. For those at Mannford Schools, it was one of putting it all together and marching on.
